Hi [REDACTED]
Thank you for you're response. It's extremely difficult as we really do need a rise but also don't want to put people off by a increasing too much. I would suggest the starting fare to rise to £3.50 for the first mile then 50 pence there after. I hope this is helpful

To whom it may concern

Really glad to hear that you will be reviewing the table of fares. I think it is imperative that we receive a increase. This is due to the increased costs we are facing in fuel and extra costs of part's. Aswell as dealing with these increases we have the cost of living to deal with which has seen a significant impact on the weekend trade less people going out. We are being impacted on multiple fronts and without a rise in fares could see the loss of a lot of drivers due to this

Yours
